About me

Hello, I'm Jay, an introvert self - taught Software Engineer from Pob. Guipos Zamboanga del Sur, Philippines. All I ever wanted is to become a game developer, but the fate says otherwise. Over the years, I have actively engaged in various projects while I'm still a student. These experiences have allowed me to develop strong problem-solving and critical-thinking skills, which are crucial when it comes to tackling complex programming challenges. I'm always working alone to enable myself to create complex code. As time passes by, I grow bored and I want to experience new challenges in life by collaborating with others and thrive in environments that foster creativity and innovation to see if I overcome my level impossible of shyness.
